SNOWMOBILING
One way to enjoy Taos’ beauty in all of its snowcapped glory is with a guided snowmobile tour through the Taos Ski Valley wilderness. These tours offer visitors views from up to 12,000 feet and a unique way to take on the mighty mountains of northern New Mexico. Check out Big Al’s Snowmobile Tours for more information!

SNOWSHOEING
When the snow falls, what were once the most scenic hiking and biking trails in Taos and Taos Ski Valley transform into prime snowshoeing spots. Taos Snowshoe Adventures can take you into New Mexico’s Southern Rocky Mountains for half or full day tours. They also offer overnight yurt trips and full moon snowshoe tours. If you can walk, you can snowshoe!

SOAK THE DAY AWAY
After a day of winter activities, it’s time to warm up in our natural hot spring. Black Rock Hot Springs and Manby Hot Springs are both good choices by the Rio Grande to relax and soak.

WARM UP & GET COZY
Head down the mountain and to the Historic District of Taos to Cici’s Bean and Espresso Bar for an impressive selection of coffees and hot drinks. With your hot drink in tow, take a stroll around the John Dunn Shops for some of the best shopping (and people watching) in town.

SLEDDING
Who says skiing or snowboarding is the only way to get down snowy hills? Bring your own sled and take a run on the hill next to Edelweiss Lodge and Spa at Taos Ski Valley! Grab a sled and some friends and get ready for a day spent with fast fun in the snow.

GRAB A BEER
Let’s face it – sometimes the best way to enjoy the snow is to just sit back and take it all in. Places like Taos Mesa Brewing offer local craft beer and incredible views of the vast, snow covered mesa during the winter, and the German-style Bavarian serves up good food and delicious brews in the midst of all the action in Taos Ski Valley. There’s no way better way to stay warm than chilling inside with an ice cold beer!
